

Geography of Ancient Egypt Presentation

King Tut is looking for your help. He wants to document his deep appreciation for the geography of his Egyptian Kingdom and how he never wants this appreciation or the beauty of the ancient land to be forgotten for the rest of eternity. You have researched the geographic features of Egypt, now it is your job to impress King Tut and convince him to choose your presentation to go down in history! As a group, you will create an interesting, informative, and brief presentation describing the geographic features of Ancient Egypt and why they were important to Egyptian life. Remember you need to impress King Tut!

Present to King Tut! Your group needs to choose how to best present the following information so your presentation is chosen to be written as a historical document for Egyptian history.

Presentation Requirements:

- Your presentation must stick to the theme of your research and describe the importance of the Nile River and geography of Egypt on the everyday lives of Ancient Egyptians.
- CHOOSE one or two things from each chart category you would like to share in your presentation.
- Your project must include the following key research terms: flax or wheat, silt, pyramids, papyrus, crops, fishing, and trade.
- The options of how to present your research gives a lot of room to be creative so do not be afraid to think outside the box.
- All members of the group must take turns or take part in presenting.

ORDER OF EVENTS:

1. CHOOSE what information you are going to present
2. Decide what role each person is going to play
3. Organize your information
4. Decide how you are going to present
5. ORGANIZE
6. PRACTICE, PRACTICE, PRACTICE!!
